

Barking Riverside is one of the largest brownfield sites in Europe and one of the most innovative regeneration projects in the UK. Running alongside two kilometres of Thames riverside and covering more than 500 acres it will play a strategic role in housing London's growing population.

Bellway in a joint partnership with the London Borough of Barking and Dagenham and English Partnerships as joint landowners are primed to take a leading role in creating what will be a new town east of London. The scheme will involve transforming Barking Riverside into a sustainable integrated community comprising of up to 10,000 new homes. Amenities will range from leisure, shopping and community facilities to nature reserves and parkland.